SHOW-DOWN TIME FOR WWF GRUDGE MATCHES

WrestleMania 2 is a sports-entertainment event of such magnitude that one wrestling ring is not sufficient to hold it. This World Wrestling Federation spectacular originates from three of the nation's great arenas—the Nassau Coliseum, Uniondale, New Jersey; Rosemont Horizon; Illinois, and Los Angeles Sports Arena, California. Only in this way could the appropriate stage be provided for the sweeping drama and high excitement in store for audiences around the world who are viewing this incredible epic. The stars of WrestleMania 2 are of heroic proportions, as are the events that will unfold before the evening's end. WrestleMania 2 has become a global amphitheater in which mighty men battle one another in titanic contests over matters of personal pride and honor.

Events that unfolded in the weeks prior to tonight's event have left no room for equivocation on the part of the participants and their supporters. The battle lines for WrestleMania 2 have been drawn, and they cut across the ranks of the World Wrestling Federation, pitting vastly diverse athletic styles and personal philosophies against one another.

Nowhere is this more evident than in the gargantuan battle that has shaped up between WWF Champion Hulk Hogan and his scheduled adversary, King Kong Bundy, a brutal behemoth who weighs more than 450 pounds and delights in the destruction of opponents' dignity as well as their bodies. Bundy is a man who cares for nothing but winning between the ropes. Victory—the more one-sided the better—feeds his ego, which is as colossal as his body. Bundy's immense size and reputation for brutality have withered the spirit of some of the top athletes in the WWF. Man after man has crumbled before him. But Bundy has not been satisfied and, by his own words, will not be until he breaks Hogan and takes his championship belt—the belt on the line when the bell rings tonight.

Hogan and Bundy are a study in opposites. Hogan is known for his high ideals, projecting old-fashioned American values and sportsmanship in the ring. Modest despite his great achievements, he and his legion of fans together create the exciting spirit of what has come to be known as Hulk-amania. Hogan's entrance into an arena is greeted by an outpouring of jubilant emotion. Possibly no other athlete has such a devoted and enthusiastic following. The champion, in turn, is as devoted to his fans as they are to him. Some WWF insiders confide that one of the main reasons Bundy wants to humble Hogan is envy over his relationship with the public.

King Kong Bundy

As WrestleMania 2 approached, it became evident that Bundy had put all his energies into gaining the edge for tonight's bout, including an attempt to disable Hogan beforehand. Hardly more than a month ago, before a national television audience on NBC's Saturday Night's Main Event, Bundy tried a sneak attack on Hogan that put him in the hospital but, astonishingly, not out of the ring. Bundy later said that the reason for his assault was to bait Hogan into a title match at WrestleMania 2.

WWF Champion Hulk Hogan

The occasion was a match between Hogan and the Magnificent Don Muraco, another arch-foe of the champion. It was evident that something was amiss before the opening of the bout. Muraco was not accompanied by his cunning manager, Mr. Fuji. Fuji, fans were told, was ill with the Asian flu, so Muraco appeared accompanied by a substitute manager, Bobby "The Brain" Heenan who, not by coincidence, serves full-time as Bundy's mentor.

Hogan and Muraco battled furiously. Surviving Muraco's feared "Asian spike" maneuver, Hogan finally came back to better the "Magnificent One." But then Heenan entered the ring. His attention diverted by Heenan, the Hulkster was an easy target for a sneak attack from behind by Bundy, who had remained in the vicinity of ringside after an easy win earlier.

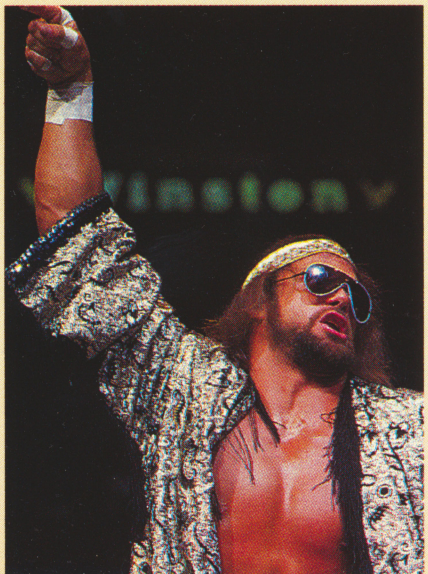
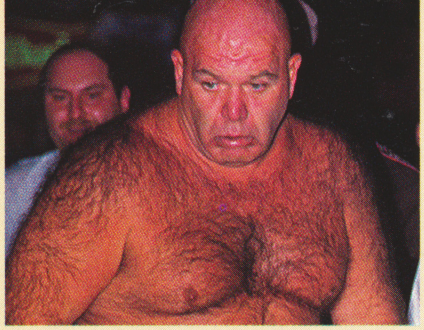
As fans screamed, Bundy, Muraco and Heenan ganged up on Hogan. Muraco and Bundy pummeled the champion mercilessly. The real damage was accomplished, however, not by blows but by Bundy's terrible Big Splash and Avalanche. Both of these maneuvers end with King Kong's full weight smashing into the victim. Before other wrestlers could rush from the dressing room to his aid, Hogan had been injured so seriously he was rushed to a hospital in Phoenix, Arizona, where the Main Event was produced. Doctors later said Hogan had internal injuries and damaged ribs.

Because of his remarkable recuperative powers, however, Hogan recovered and quickly began training for tonights' confrontation, which will be held in a steel cage. Hogan has called the steel cage "barbaric" but has pledged to "change Bundy's facial structure." At stake, said Hogan at a pre-bout press conference, is "everything I stand for."

Hogan also was involved in events leading to another key bout on the WrestleMania 2 card. The scenario began when wrestling's greatest schemer, Rowdy Roddy Piper, convinced his bodyguard, Cowboy Bob Orton, to try a new tactic in the wrestling ring: boxing. Christening himself "Boxing Bob," Orton donned the gloves and challenged anyone in the WWF to face him in a pugilistic encounter. Several wrestlers tried, only to be

'Macho Man' Randy Savage





George 'The Animal' Steele

smashed down for the 10-count by the powerful Orton.

Flushed with Orton's success, Piper issued another challenge. Orton would take on anyone, Roddy asserted, offering an open contract to all comers. But he did not anticipate the challenger Hulk Hogan had in mind. On national television, Hogan picked up the gauntlet thrown down by Piper and signed up a "good friend" as Orton's opponent. The friend: the rough-and-ready Mr. T, star of television's The A Team and the motion picture Rocky III.

Piper and Orton know Mr. T well, too well. Teamed up together, Mr. T and Hogan annihilated Piper and Orton in last year's WrestleMania. Both Piper and Orton bear a deep grudge against Mr. T, but they also fear him.

Outfoxed by Hogan, Piper and Orton were forced into the boxing match with Mr. T. Piper took no chances. Mr. T tore up Orton, but Piper, as he so often does, interfered. He and Orton joined forces against Mr. T—with Piper boxing barefisted. Despite a valiant effort to fight off his assailants, Mr. T finally went down. Then the unbelievable happened. While Orton held Mr. T face-down on the mat, Piper produced a whip and began lashing him. For Mr. T it was the ultimate indignity, one which can only be wiped out when Mr. T and Piper put on the gloves and come out fighting.

WrestleMania 2 is a time for erasing indignities, not just for Hogan and Mr. T but for the childlike beast-man George "The Animal" Steele. As most wrestling fans know, Steele, in his own simple way, has become infatuated with the beautiful Elizabeth, manager and attendant of Randy "Macho Man" Savage, the WWF Intercontinental Champion. When it comes to Elizabeth, Steele is a lovesick puppy. George's manager, Captain Lou Albano, has tried to shield him from a broken heart, but Steele has been swept away with his fascination for the gorgeous young woman.

Savage, while claiming that Elizabeth is little more than an ornament, is fiercely jealous of her attention. When Steele repeatedly tried to offer her flowers—his innocent mind meaning no harm—Savage warned him to stop. Steele, however, was so enraptured that he continued to bring his gifts to Elizabeth whenever she accompanied Savage to ringside.

The tragic result of Steele's lovestruck actions came after Savage had won a nationally televised match. While Savage postured in the ring, the Animal humbly pressed a bouquet into Elizabeth's hand. As she tentatively took it, Savage noticed what was happening. In a flash, he jumped from the top rope to the arena floor, smashing Steele with an elbow on the way down. Then he hauled the stunned Steele into the ring, tied him up in the ropes and, before millions of fans, slapped George repeatedly with the flowers before shoving them into his face.

Before Savage could demean Steele further, however, Albano freed him. Bellowing, Steele charged across the ring at Savage, who quickly fled to the shelter of the dressing room. Steele then shambled away with Albano. The look on the Animal's face showed plainly that, despite his dim wits, he realized he had been horribly humiliated.

When the promoters of WrestleMania 2 offered to arrange a match between Savage and Steele, Albano seized the opportunity. Tonight Savage will put his title on the line against a primal man who has done nothing worse than have tender feelings for a woman. Now, however, something other than love has been aroused in Steele's breast—a raging fury that can be calmed by only one thing, the scalp of Randy "Macho Man" Savage. WF

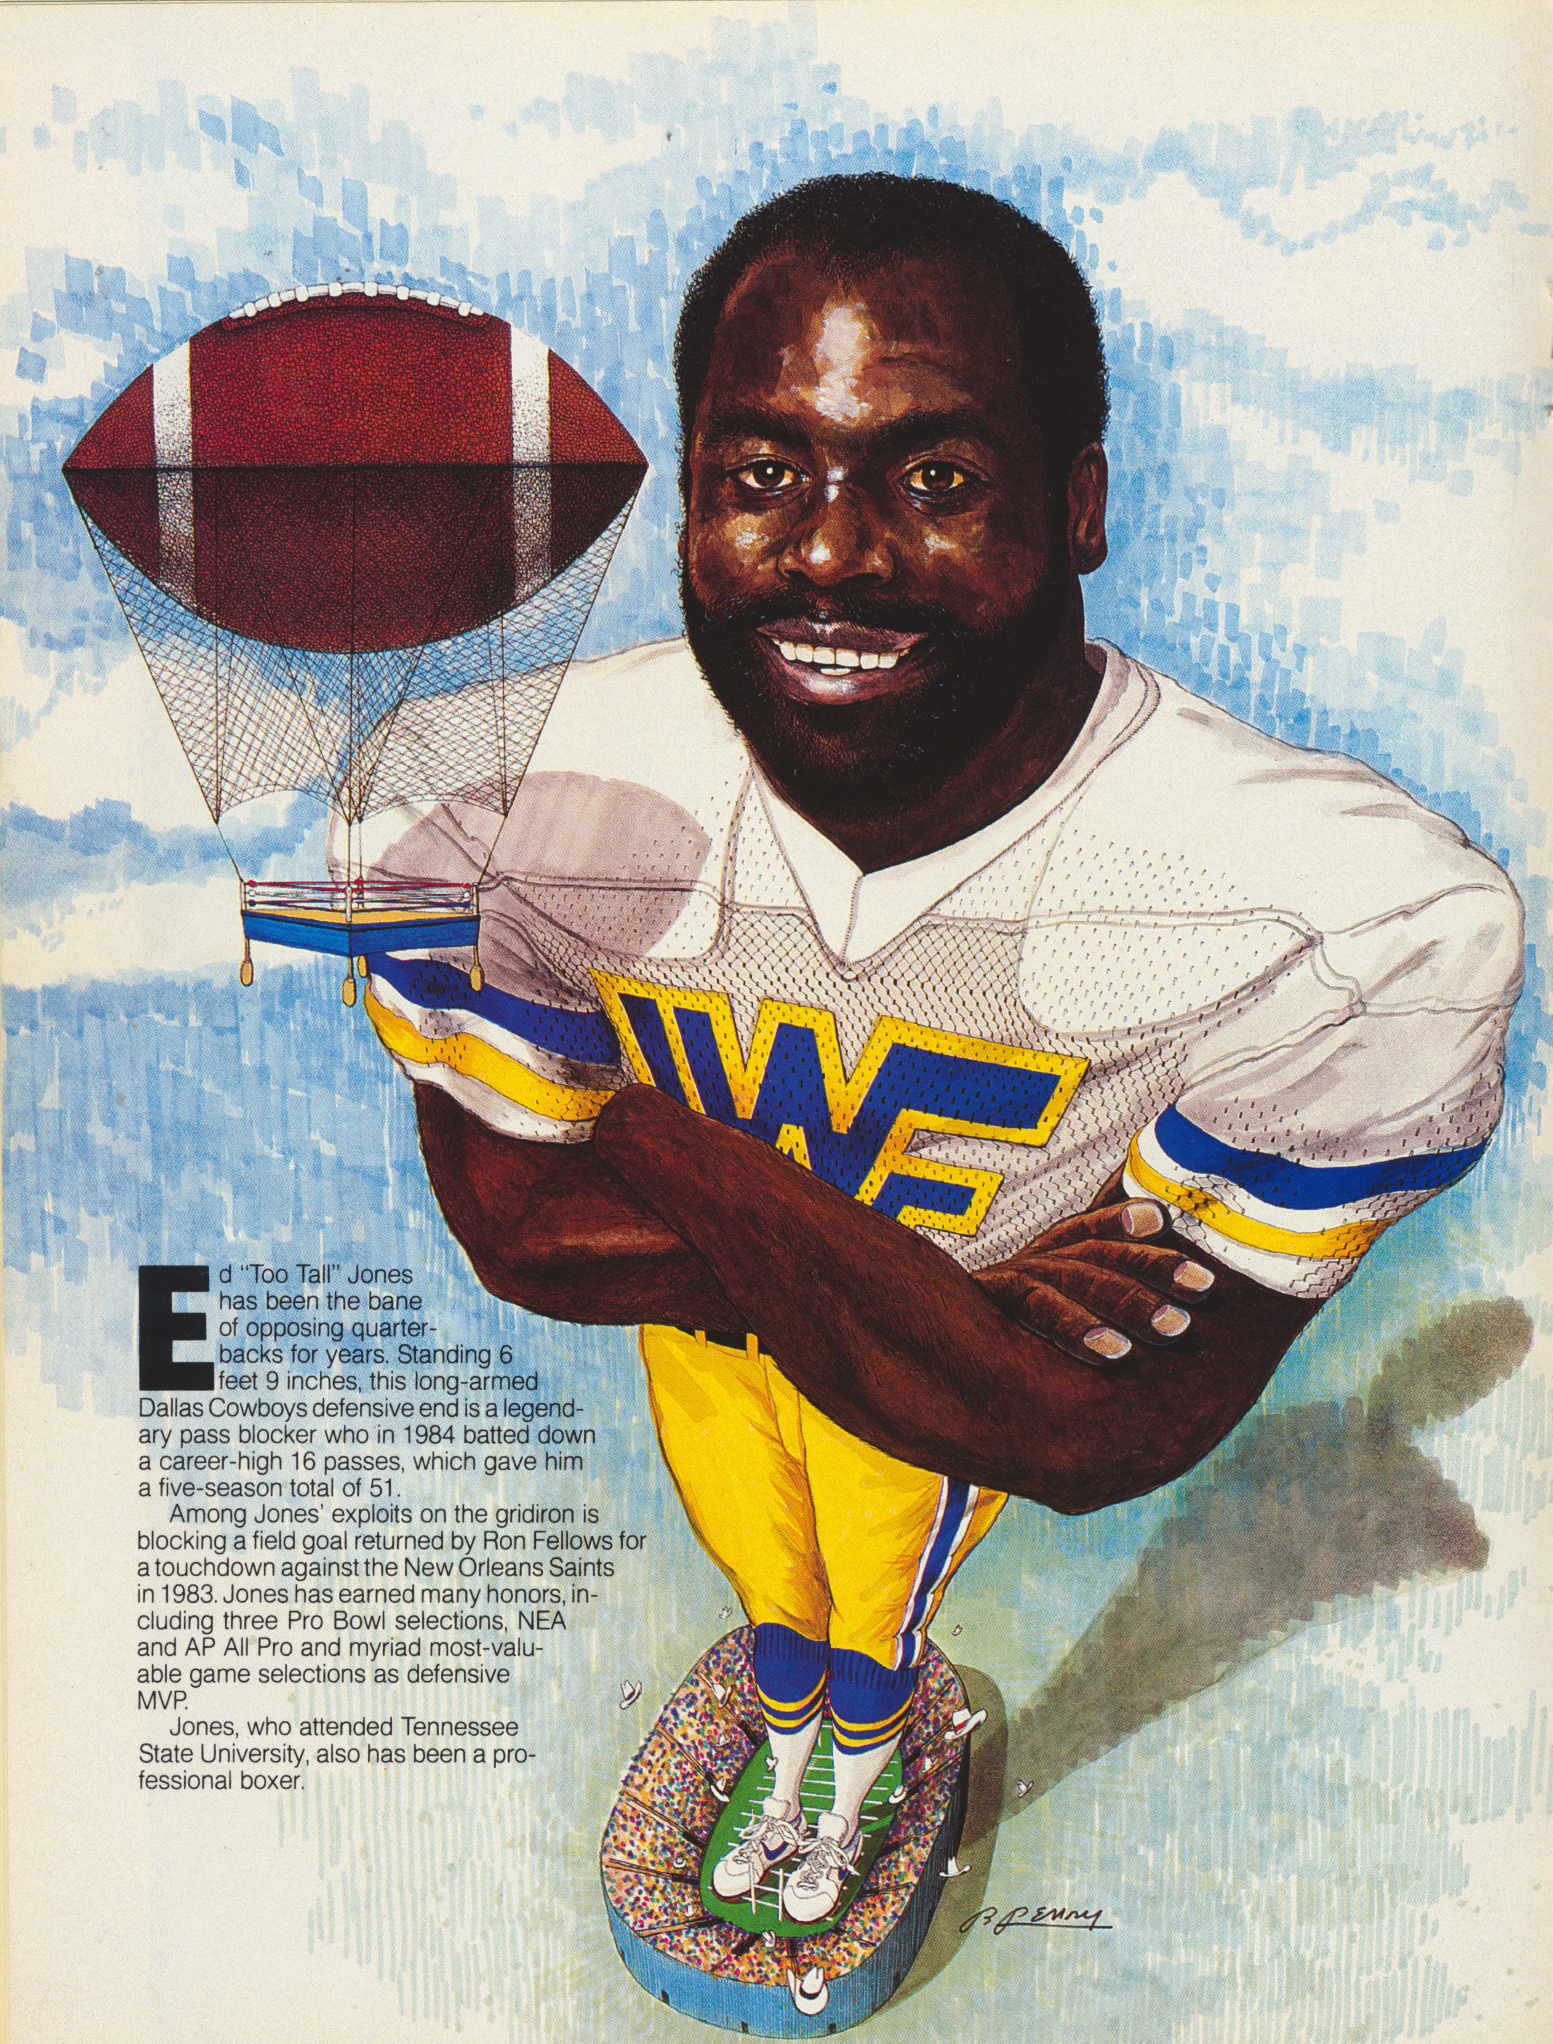
Jimmy "Mouth of the South" Hart, rock and roll star turned manager...from Memphis, Tennessee... manages the Funk brothers, Adonis, Jim "The Anvil" Neidhart and Brett "Hit Man" Hart.



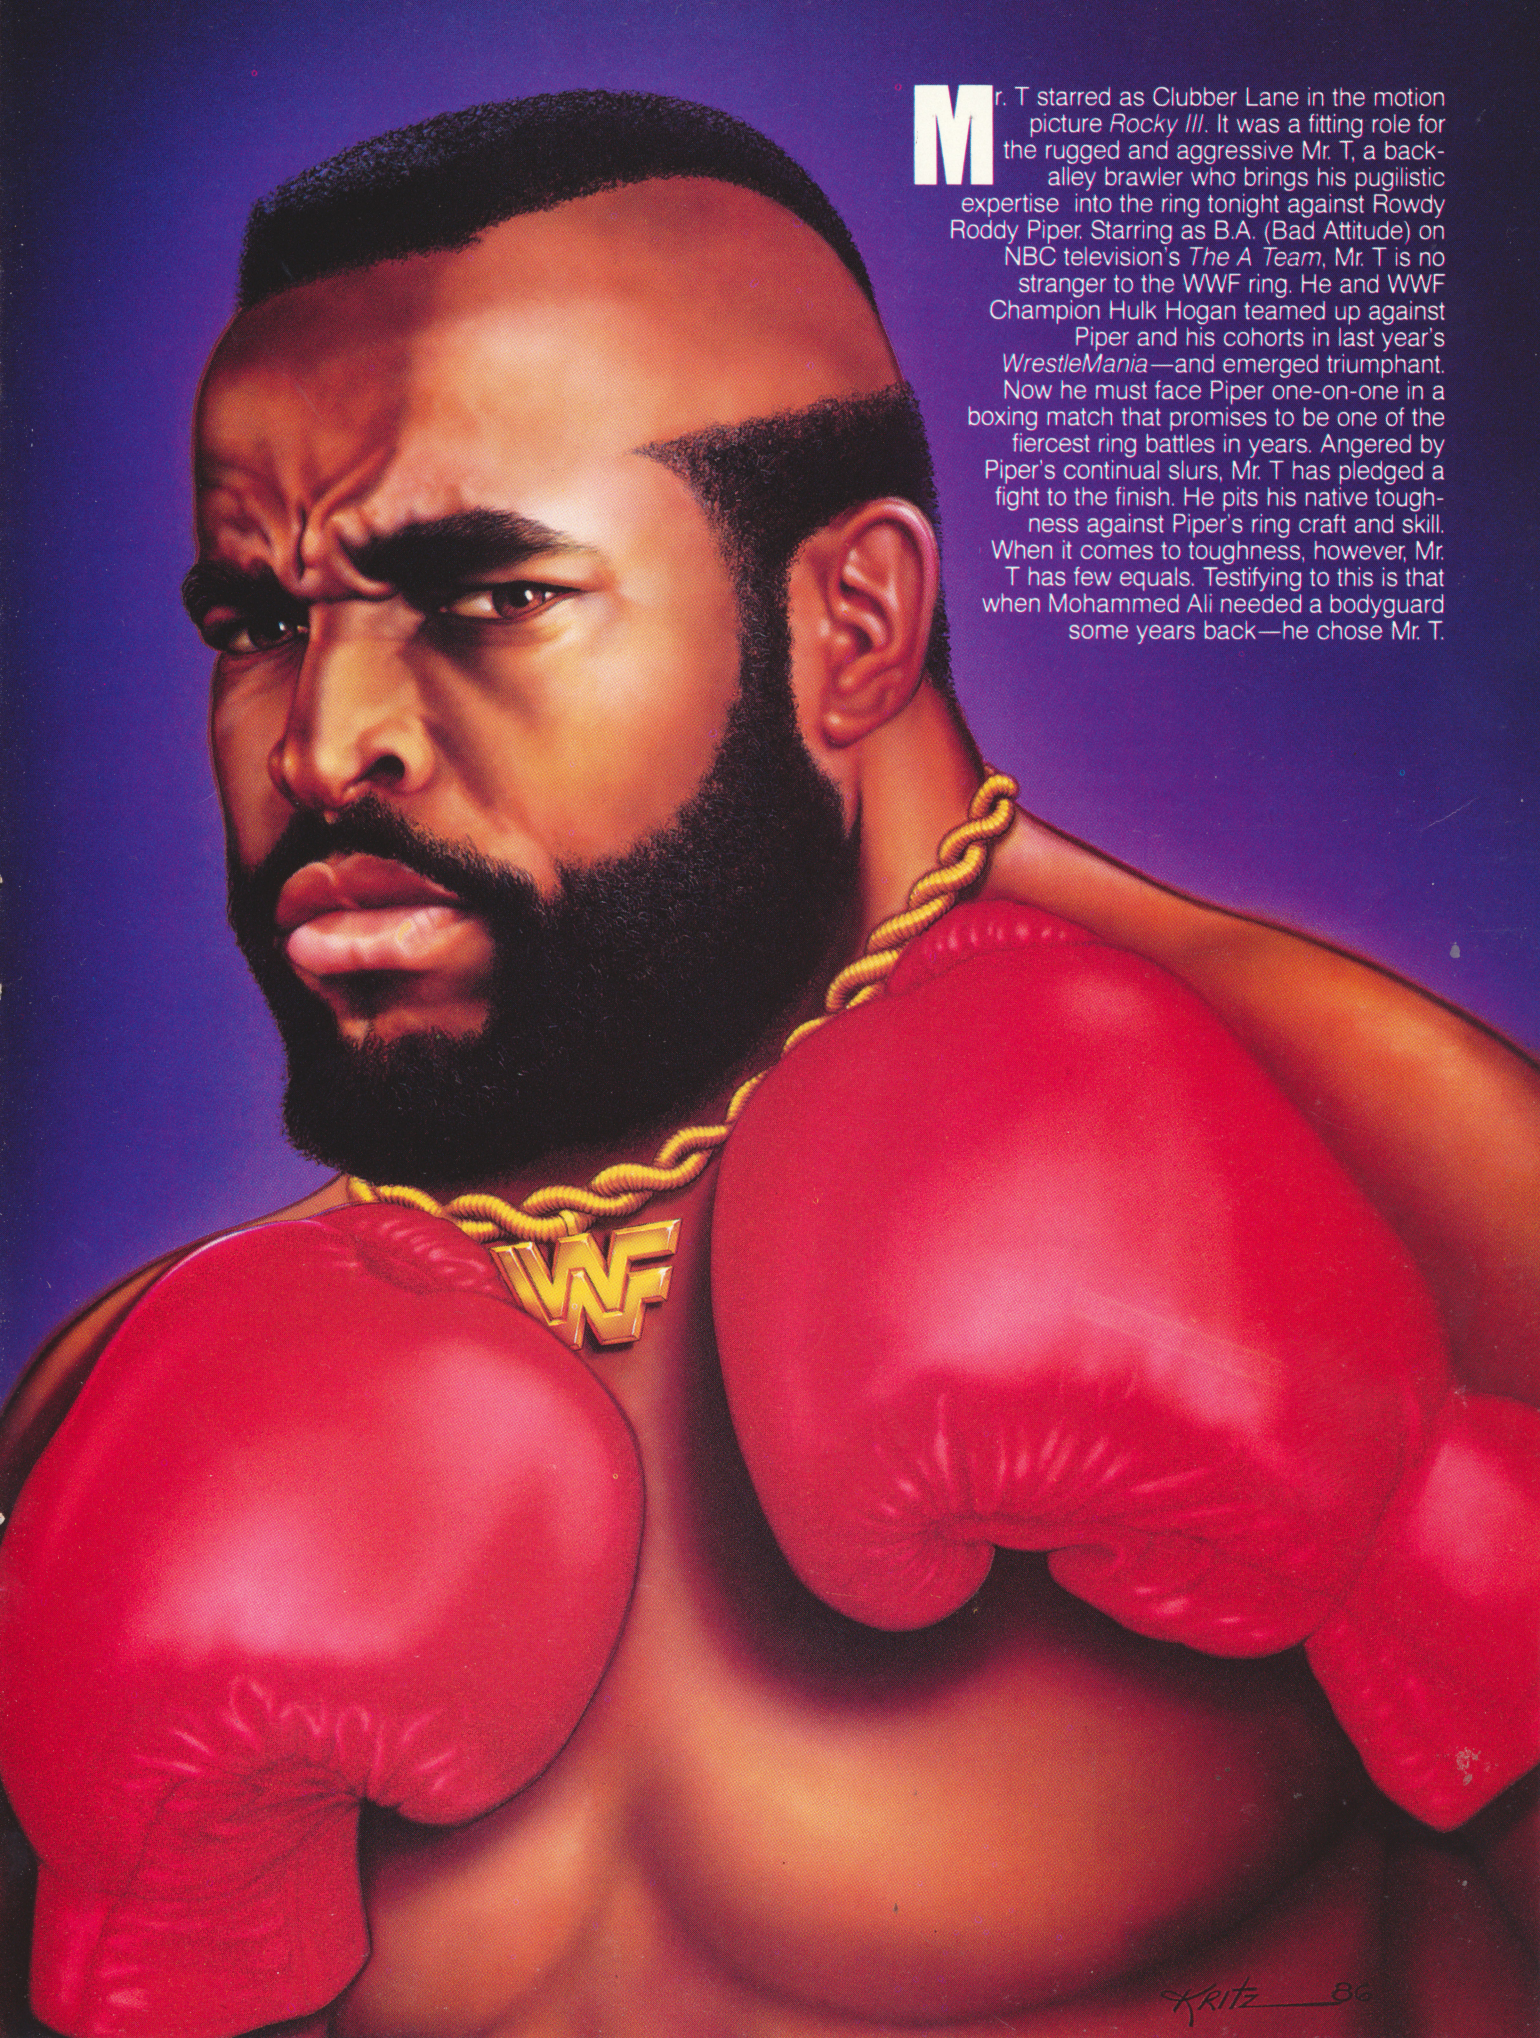
Ed "Too Tall" Jones has been the bane of opposing quarterbacks for years. Standing 6 feet 9 inches, this long-armed Dallas Cowboys defensive end is a legendary pass blocker who in 1984 batted down a career-high 16 passes, which gave him a five-season total of 51.

Among Jones' exploits on the gridiron is blocking a field goal returned by Ron Fellows for a touchdown against the New Orleans Saints in 1983. Jones has earned many honors, including three Pro Bowl selections, NEA and AP All Pro and myriad most-valuable game selections as defensive MVP.

Jones, who attended Tennessee State University, also has been a professional boxer.

Refrigerator Perry, a true monster of the Midway, has become one of the most familiar figures in professional football, indeed in American sports. A behemoth at 304 pounds, Perry owns the largest Super Bowl ring ever—a size 22. During the Chicago Bears' championship season, Perry made headlines not only as a defensive tackle but as a sometimes running back, put in when the Bears' offense needed beef on the goal line. Perry has just completed his second season. He was a first round draft pick out of Clemson University in 1985.

Rowdy Roddy Piper, sometimes called "The Man You Love to Hate," is probably the most controversial figure in professional wrestling. This native of Glasgow, Scotland, has been at the heart of, or at least involved in, almost every feud within the ranks of the WWF. Many of the fiercest confrontations among WWF Wrestlers have been provoked by Piper on his television interview show, Piper's Pit. Instigator, bedeviler of his adversaries and master plotter, Piper seemingly holds grudges forever. He has never forgiven his opponent of tonight, Mr. T, for siding with WWF Champion Hulk Hogan against the Rowdy One in last year's WrestleMania. Piper went down to ignominious defeat. Tonight he hopes to settle the score. Piper has vowed to humble Mr. T in the ring. Unlike many braggarts, the Rowdy One has the athletic prowess to back up his boasts of greatness. The 232-pound Scot is a super athlete and—an important point to remember during tonight's event—was once an amateur boxing champion.

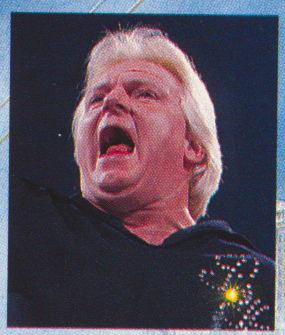


Mr. T starred as Clubber Lane in the motion picture Rocky III. It was a fitting role for the rugged and aggressive Mr. T, a back-alley brawler who brings his pugilistic expertise into the ring tonight against Rowdy Roddy Piper. Starring as B.A. (Bad Attitude) on NBC television's The A Team, Mr. T is no stranger to the WWF ring. He and WWF Champion Hulk Hogan teamed up against Piper and his cohorts in last year's WrestleMania—and emerged triumphant. Now he must face Piper one-on-one in a boxing match that promises to be one of the fiercest ring battles in years. Angered by Piper's continual slurs, Mr. T has pledged a fight to the finish. He pits his native toughness against Piper's ring craft and skill. When it comes to toughness, however, Mr. T has few equals. Testifying to this is that when Mohammed Ali needed a bodyguard some years back—he chose Mr. T.

A garguantua from Atlantic City, New Jersey, King Kong Bundy inspires terror every time his 458-pound body enters the wrestling ring. Glowering and sneering, his bald skull glistening with perspiration, Bundy evokes images out of a nightmare. Standing on legs like pillars, with massive, sloping shoulders and arms like those of a gorilla, Bundy relies on his fearsome appearance to shake the confidence of his opponents even before the opening bell.

This mammoth of a man does not need psychology to overcome ring adversaries. He is incredibly strong—and a superb technical wrestler when the need arises. Few men have lasted more than a few minutes with Bundy, who holds the WWF record for the fastest pin ever—nine seconds over S.D. "Special Delivery" Jones in last year's WrestleMania.

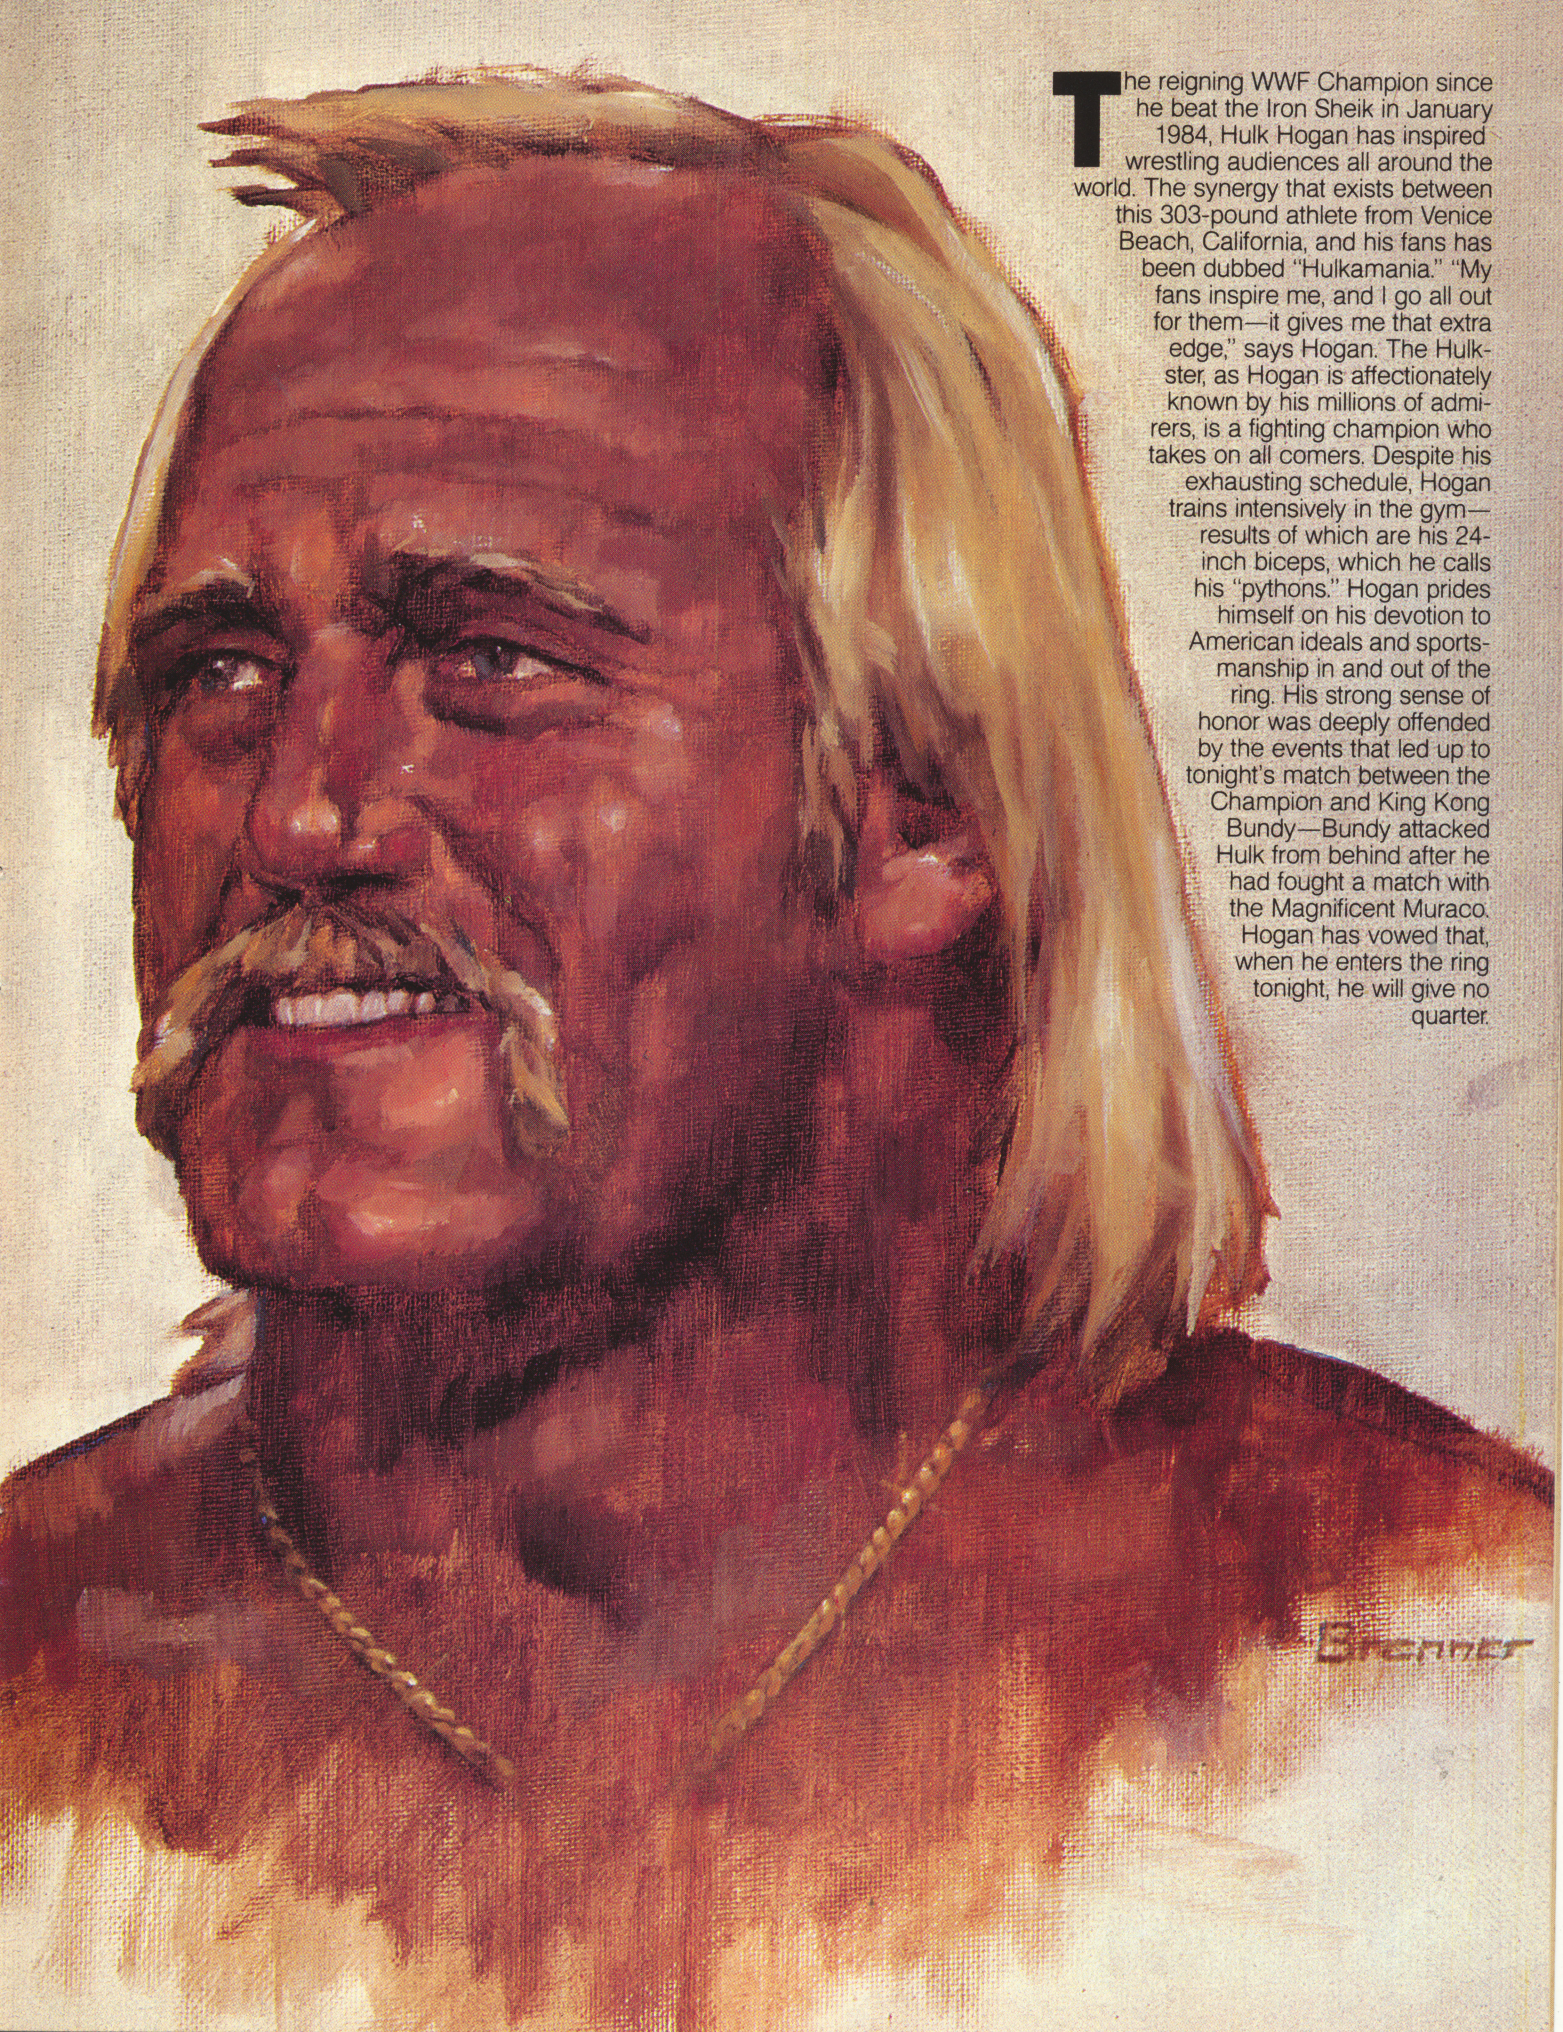
Bundy is thus an awesome opponent for WWF Champion Hulk Hogan. Seldom has Hogan had to face a man of Bundy's overpowering size and brutal disposition. The match shapes up as a battle of giants.



Bobby Heenan

Called 'The Weasel' by his detractors, 'The Brain' by himself... manager of King Kong Bundy, Big John Studd... a cunning and deadly adversary...considered one of the best ring minds in the WWF...high liver and fancy dresser.

KRITZ 86



The reigning WWF Champion since he beat the Iron Sheik in January 1984, Hulk Hogan has inspired wrestling audiences all around the world. The synergy that exists between this 303-pound athlete from Venice Beach, California, and his fans has been dubbed "Hulkamania." "My fans inspire me, and I go all out for them—it gives me that extra edge," says Hogan. The Hulkster, as Hogan is affectionately known by his millions of admirers, is a fighting champion who takes on all comers. Despite his exhausting schedule, Hogan trains intensively in the gym—results of which are his 24-inch biceps, which he calls his "pythons." Hogan prides himself on his devotion to American ideals and sportsmanship in and out of the ring. His strong sense of honor was deeply offended by the events that led up to tonight's match between the Champion and King Kong Bundy—Bundy attacked Hulk from behind after he had fought a match with the Magnificent Muraco. Hogan has vowed that, when he enters the ring tonight, he will give no quarter.
